

XM offers clear and uninterrupted service to it's subscribers. It's time that the NAB looks at the quality of service offered by XM radio, and attempts to emulate that for its own clientele. If this protest is allowed to proceed it jepordizes all subscription TV and Radio services, and leaves them at the mercy of the NAB and other large powerful organizations. It's time to use a bit of common sense here and allow this quality programming to continue. Last I heard this great Country of ours was founded on freedom and opportunity.....Here is an excellent opportunity for the FCC to allow XM Radio to exercise that freedom and continue to provide its excellent services to those who subscribe.
